Mr. and Mrs. Harding Housed Under Canvas At Gettysburg Camp

Enjoying the Novelty of Improvised "White House"—Marion, Ohio, Planning to Receive Presidential Party.

SALLIE V. H. PICKETT.

THE President and Mrs. Harding awakened this morning under a canvas roof, their first glimpse of the outer world reaching over the famous Gettysburg battlefield, the view offered being one of the most beautiful in Pennsylvania. The first lady of the land was enthusiastic in her desire for the night under canvas, for she is an ardent lover of outdoor life, and her knowledge of civil war history gives every inch of her historic habitation more than ordinary interest. She is a good, sturdy companion for the President, and went sensibly equipped for the trip to Gettysburg and then to Ohio. She asks for no greater luxury than the ordinary camper or tourist enjoys.

THE scene in Marion beggars description, if "letters from home" are not too vividly overdrawn, and the little city is fairly bursting with importance to have as an inhabitant once more, even for a short time, their President, who belonged to them before he belonged to the country. Hundreds who have forgotten an annual visit home for years past are going back to Marion, and Ohioans motoring through the middle states are hastening to reach there by July 4. It is the first visit of the President and Mrs. Harding to their old home since the inauguration, and they are thrilled with the prospect.

QUE in contrast to the glorious Fourth of the President and Mrs. Harding will be that of the Vice President and Mrs. Coolidge. The Vice President will remain in Washington to hold down the lid, the Senate being scheduled for a session tomorrow. Tuesday is the birthday anniversary of Mr. Coolidge, who was born at Plymouth, Vt., in 1872, and while the entire country is in a state of celebration, the Vice President will, as usual, take the day quite coolly. John and Calvin Coolidge are with their parents and undoubtedly will have an interest in the mild pyrotechnics of the capital, being able from the windows of the New Willard to see pretty much all that takes place on the Mall, without stepping a foot outside.

MRS. COOLIDGE, as chairman of the Senate ladies' luncheon club, announces an unusually charming party for Tuesday of next week, when Mrs. T. Coleman du Pont will entertain them on board the Tech, her husband's beautiful little yacht. The affair will, as usual, be a picnic luncheon party, with all the traditions of the regular affair at the Capitol prevailing, even to the detail of the ladies carrying their own sandwiches. There are the usual groups detailed to supply the cake and other "goodies," and the only difference is the added charm of a water trip on a luxurious, up-to-date yacht. The Tech will leave the dock at the foot of 7th street, at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, for the trip.

THERE are few dinner parties being given now, that at the White House Thursday night, which was of unusual political significance, several small diplomatic dinners and small parties at the Chevy Chase, Country and Lock Tavern clubs, the Montgomery County Country Club and the Congressional Club, covering the list. Next in importance to the President's dinner party was that at the New Willard Monday night, when the minister of Guatemala and Senora de Sanchez Latour entertained for the recently appointed United States minister to Guatemala and Mrs. Arthur H. Geissler, who will sail from New Orleans for their new post Tuesday.

SENATORIAL days are not dull days in Washington, however, small and informal dinner and card parties, trips to country clubs and other informal ways of entertaining, keeping them employed socially. Senator George Wharton Pepper and his son-in-law, Mr. F. E. Newbold, are two of the senatorial set who are interested in tennis, and permitted by the President's invitation to cross racquets on the White House courts. Miss Margaret Wilson was an ardent follower of tennis while her father was President, and many thrilling games were played there. The courts are now on the south front lawn near the huge circular fountain, but in Roosevelt's time it was within sight of and just without his office windows, and it was there that he and the ambassador of France, M. Jusserand; the late German ambassador, Baron von Sternberg; Gifford Pinchot of Philadelphia and others pulled off many strenuous games of tennis. The old court is now the White House rose garden, where the rose trees of almost every known variety make it one of the show places of the mansion.

AMONG those sailing the first of July for Europe are Dr. and Mrs. John Crayke Simpson, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. James C. Harbord, the general making his first visit to Europe since the war; Capt. Gustav Villaret, a member of the general's personal staff; the commercial attaché of the French embassy and Mme. Heilmann and their daughter, Miss Claire Heilmann, who will sail Wednesday; Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Laughlin, who have taken a villa at Lake Como; Mrs. Malcolm McConne and her son, Malcolm, Jr., and many others. Miss Mary Wallace sailed yesterday from New York with a party of college girls, and while some of the number will make a brief tour of the leading countries of interest, Miss Wallace will be absent until some time in October.
